Almost every day large parties of devotees are assembled, and some record breaking strokes are made, at times.

The many friends of Mrs. R. Q. Ousley, who has been very ill for two weeks, will rejoice to learn that she is now improving.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Craig have returned from their wedding tour. Their stay was a most delightful one, having visited Washington, New York and Boston. They also enjoyed the beautiful trip to Quebec down the St. Lawrence river. They are at home, 109 E. Romana street.

Willie Berry, Jr., celebrated his thirteenth birthday Thursday night by informally asking his friends to spend the evening with him. About thirty young people responded and were happily entertained with games, music and dancing, and abundant and delicious ice cream, cakes and other refreshments were served.

Miss Cella Roberts will be home tonight from Fayetteville, N. C., after an absence of four years. Her mother Mrs. C. U. Roberts will go to Century to meet her, and her family and many friends will give her a most cordial welcome home.

Mr. F. E. Brawner and son Oliver are expected home to-day from an extended trip through the northwestern states and Canada.

Mrs. W. H. Northup will leave during the week for Chautauqua, N. Y. She will later join friends for a Canadian trip.

Mrs. W. C. Jones and children left Friday for Nashville, Tenn., where Mrs. Jones will spend several weeks at her old home.

Miss Josephine Winter who has spent several weeks in this city visiting friends, recently guest of Mrs. F. E. Brawner, left yesterday noon for her home in Crawfordsville, Ind.

HATING THE SIN AND LOVING THE SINNER.

Those of us who have never been tempted are hardly in a position to crow over the fallen. It is only those who have resisted temptation who are entitled to censure and they—well, they are least inclined to do so, feeling only humble, and prayerful and grateful.

Grateful that they were enabled to safely cross the ditches across the past; praying they may have no more to cross; and—humbly by a knowledge of their own weakness and dread of still stronger temptations that may await them further along the way.

It is evidence of small virtue to denounce the sinner rather than the sin and savor rather of conscious trespass than of intelligent rectitude. And yet it requires a fine moral courage to be fair, and honorable and upright toward a fallen friend and is quite as difficult, as to be merciful in judgment of an enemy.

If we, ourselves are true to the best within us, our friend fallen, is even more dear than our friend upright, but—his sin is more hateful than the sin of an enemy or of a stranger—from the human point of view—because it wounds us as the deed of an enemy or a stranger could not do.

But O! The ramifications of consequences go so far beyond our knowledge, striking hardest where we love most and are most tenderly loved, in the present, and God alone knows how and where our influence may bring the sting of shame in the future—here and—God knows!

How our hearts ache with the blind, helpless human ache for our fellow creature brought to the bar of man's judgment—fair, faulty judgment at best, yet the best we can reach with our limited human ability.

But how infinitely more painful is the longing of the soul to lay the simplicity of salvation before a poor, weak spirit as it hovers on the brink of eternity, yet lacking the moral courage to "intrude" upon the last moments left to the parting ones; longing to say: "Only trust to Him—He knows the innermost motives that have moved you; He knows your weakness—your struggles and why these things have been; He will accept you if you will just ask Him. That is all—if you are sincere, that you need to do or to know. He will make the rest of the way plain if you are in earnest—earnest enough to really turn to Him for aid, whatever your dilemma—your fears—your sins."

PICNIC AT ELECTRIC PARK.
In a jolly crowd of young people who enjoyed a day's outing at Electric Park recently were: Misses Inga Torkelsen, Johanna Christophersen, Louise and Katie Graham, Claudia O'Neal, Fona Munn, Oril May Williams, Christina Torkelsen; Messrs. Harry Jeannotte, John and Jim Graham, John Stinson, Fordham and Reuben Van Alst, Thomas McCullough, Oscar Crona, Max Rupert, Jimmie Smith, Leon Griffith, Gordon Hall, Hugh Hutton, Flavian Mann, Dooley O'Connor, John Mitchell, Mr. Smith, George Berry, Edgar Day and Oliver Williams, chaperoned by Mrs. J.
